Who We Are

Michigan Advocacy Program (MAP) is the umbrella organization for a variety of civil legal aid programs in Michigan. Our services began in the early 1960’s through several independent local legal aid societies. These local programs eventually merged and became Legal Services of South Central Michigan (LSSCM), which provides free civil legal aid for 13 counties in south and central Michigan. During the late 1990’s, national legal aid leaders challenged states to create an integrated and comprehensive statewide network to provide legal services. In response, MAP developed several independent statewide programs to broadly support legal aid across Michigan and to serve specific populations, such as immigrants and older adults. These programs include: Michigan Immigrant Rights Center (MIRC); Farmworker Legal Services (FLS); Michigan Poverty Law Program (MPLP); Michigan Foreclosure Prevention Project (MFPP); Michigan Elder Justice Initiative (MEJI); Crime Victims Legal Assistance Project (CVLAP); and Michigan Legal Help (MLH). MAP was created in 2015 to continue its direct operational support for the LSSCM offices and FLS, and to provide administrative support for these new statewide programs, collectively known as Michigan Statewide Advocacy Services (MSAS).

What We Do

MAP provides free civil legal help for those unable to afford an attorney. We believe that equal justice is a right, not a privilege, and our programs work to break the justice barriers in our country. Civil legal aid helps individuals and families with issues like: wrongful foreclosures, fraudulent debt collection, escaping domestic violence, eviction and homelessness prevention, accessing health care and disability benefits, and many other civil court cases. This legal advocacy is the foundation of MAP’s LSSCM programs. FLS and the MSAS programs focus on serving populations with specific legal challenges, including migrant and seasonal farmworkers (FLS), immigrant communities (MIRC), families facing foreclosure (MFPP), vulnerable older adults (MEJI), victims of crime and violence (CVLAP), and self-represented litigants (MLH).

Our Funding

MAP is funded by federal, state, and local grants, as well as foundations, local non-profit agencies, and individual contributions. Our largest federal funder, the Legal Services Corporation, supports only the activities of LSSCM and FLS. For more details on how our funding breaks down, see the Financial Information and Funder lists included in this Annual Report. While grants make up a large part of our budget, community support is vital to the success of our programs and helps us to continue serving those in need. See MAP’s website for a list of current supporters and to learn more about making a donation to MAP.
In 2017, LSSCM handled 10,476 cases and helped 24,765 people.

In 2017, LSSCM and Family Law Project handled 1,726 cases on behalf of survivors of domestic violence.

Theresa is a single mother with two children. She lives on limited income due to a physical disability. Theresa came to LSSCM after receiving an eviction notice from her landlord. LSSCM represented Theresa in court and negotiated a payment plan that allowed her to stay in her home and pay back the additional rent owed. Without an attorney, there is little doubt that Theresa would have lost her home.
Evictions in Michigan

Michigan's eviction rate is 3.28% with 138,169 eviction filings and nearly 93 evictions each day in 2016.* Studies find that a tenant's chance of keeping her home during eviction proceedings is drastically increased when the tenant has access to legal assistance. While most landlords are represented by a lawyer throughout the legal process, most tenants are not. As a result, tenants like Theresa are much more likely to face the consequences of eviction if they don't have legal representation. These consequences mean more than just homelessness, as evictions often have cascading negative impacts on poor families: removal from their neighborhood and community, children forced to change schools, loss of possessions, difficulty maintaining prior employment, and exclusion from new affordable housing options because of the eviction record.

*Eviction rate is the number of evictions per 100 renter homes in an area. The national average in 2016 was 2.34%. Data provided by evictionlab.org.

In 2017, LSSCM handled 3,653 housing cases and helped 8,942 people with housing issues.
Jessie, a U.S. Citizen from Puerto Rico, came to work in Michigan after hearing about a job opportunity that would pay $12 per hour for at least four months, provide housing, and guarantee at least 10 hours of work per day. For three months, Jessie worked hard in a hot nursery tending vegetable plants for ten to twelve hours per day, six to seven days a week. He lived in the migrant labor camp and shared a room with eleven other men. Then, without warning and two months before the end of his work contract, Jessie and eight of his co-workers were unexpectedly fired and told that $500 would be deducted from their final paycheck to pay for their transportation home. Jessie had met FLS staff earlier in the season during FLS’ outreach to the migrant labor camp and he called for help. Through FLS’ representation, Jessie and his co-workers were able to assert their rights and recuperate the losses they suffered due to the unexpected firing. This settlement proved to be indispensable to Jessie, who used the funds for home repairs and other relief after the 2017 hurricanes in Puerto Rico.

In 2017, FLS helped 2,125 people in 577 cases and made 560 visits to migrant labor camps across Michigan.
A local domestic violence shelter referred Eva to CVLAP after Eva’s husband physically assaulted her in front of their two young daughters. Eva was attempting to protect the family dog from her husband when he struck her in the face multiple times. CVLAP successfully obtained a personal protection order prohibiting Eva’s husband from coming to her home, contacting her by phone or email, or harassing or harming her in any way. CVLAP also helped Eva enroll her children in mental health counseling to address the trauma they experienced from witnessing their father assault their mother. Through this counseling, the therapist discovered that the father was physically and, likely, sexually abusive to the children. As a result, CVLAP helped Eva obtain a court order revising the father’s parenting time to ensure the safety of the children.

James contacted CVLAP after his abusive son was designated as his patient advocate and forced James to live at a nursing home against his will. In addition to isolating James, his son unlawfully used the patient advocate designation to limit his father’s access to visitors and prevent James from obtaining his own health care information. After CVLAP reviewed the actual language of the patient advocate designation and clarified the limited scope of its authority, James was able to once again access his home and health care information. CVLAP also helped James investigate services and supports in his home community, facilitated revocation of his son’s authority, and ultimately assisted James in discharging himself from the nursing home.

In 2017, CVLAP handled 1,304 cases and helped 3,491 people.
Providing support to legal aid programs and other poverty law advocates across Michigan

2017 Snapshot

• MPLP led a coalition opposing Michigan House Bill 4719, which would allow leases that make tenants liable for bed bug treatment, regardless of fault. MPLP’s work helped prevent passage of what would have been the first tenant unfriendly bed bug law in the U.S.

• The Violence Against Women Act provides special provisions for domestic violence survivors in subsidized housing programs. In 2017, the federal government extended these protections. MPLP worked with the Michigan State Housing Development Authority and the Michigan Rural Development Council to train staff and ensure compliance with the new law.

• MPLP argued against the Federal Farm bill, objecting to the bill’s requirement that all SNAP (Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program) recipients cooperate with establishing paternity and child support orders. MPLP cited that this requirement would be a harmful burden on families in need of SNAP benefits, particularly domestic violence survivors.

• MPLP’s consumer law attorney represented a 58-year-old woman with a disability whose identity was stolen by her neighbor. MPLP filed an identity theft report with the police and the Federal Trade Commission and negotiated with the neighbor and opposing counsel to have the client’s debt paid in full and the case dismissed.

MPLP is a joint project with the University of Michigan Law School.

George came to MEJI after receiving notice that the state planned to reduce his in-home care from 24 to 6 hours a day. George has a debilitating form of muscular dystrophy and is paralyzed from the neck down. He relies on a ventilator to breathe, but has lived in his own apartment for more than 20 years thanks to round-the-clock care through the Michigan Home Help program. The proposed reduction in caregiver services would put George’s life at risk if his ventilator or tracheostomy tube required attention while he was alone. MEJI appealed the state’s decision and won the case. As a result of MEJI’s intervention, George continues to receive 24-hour care. MEJI also worked to ensure that George’s caregivers receive prompt payment and assisted George with a transition to another Medicaid program that offers additional long-term care services and the opportunity to attend community events outside his home.
Kujoe was 15 years old and living in his home country in western Africa when a mob of teenagers attacked him, leaving him severely wounded. The group targeted Kujoe for his connections to the LGBTQ community. Kujoe's family then threatened to kill him, both for his friendship with a gay man and as retribution for his father’s recent death, which they attributed to Kujoe’s actions. As soon as he was able, Kujoe fled to the United States, where he was placed in federal custody in Michigan. This is where MIRC met Kujoe and represented him in seeking asylum. When Kujoe was approved for Special Immigrant Juvenile Status (SIJS), MIRC also accompanied him to his adjustment of status interview. Today, Kujoe has a green card, is no longer in court proceedings, and is living independently in Michigan.
“I cannot express enough gratitude and appreciation for all of the help the Michigan Legal Help website provided me in my most difficult of times. Thank you from the bottom of my heart.”

“Oh my – this is the best tool ever to prepare a legal document especially having low income. I appreciate this greatly.”

All of these firms met the State Bar of Michigan’s Voluntary Pro Bono Standard because on average each lawyer within these firms donated at least $300 or provided 30 hours of free representation for low-income persons. The Leadership level is determined on an aggregate firm basis using a $500 donation standard.
